DETAILED ACTION

1. This action is in response to papers filed 3 October 2002 in Paper No. 13 in which claim 1 was canceled; claims 47-76 were added; a correction in inventorship was filed; and a change of address was submitted. All of the amendments have been thoroughly reviewed and entered. Applicant's response was non-responsive to the Restriction Requirement of Paper No. 11. In view of the amendments, a revised Restriction Requirement is presented below.

Election/Restrictions

2. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
- I. Claims 24-31, drawn to a method for pausing a ribosome during translation, classified in class 435, subclass 91.1.
 - II. Claims 32-46, drawn to a protein-encoding RNA covalently bonded to the protein coding sequence, classified in class 536, subclass 23.1.
 - III. Claims 47-76 drawn to a molecule comprising a nucleic acid portion and a protein portion and methods of making the molecule, classified in class 536, subclass 25.3.
3. The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:
- Inventions I and II are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process i.e. the proteinencoding RNA can be made using chemical synthesis of the RNA and the protein followed by covalent coupling.

Inventions I, II and III are independent and distinct. Inventions are independent and distinct if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation and different functions. The method of Invention I operates by inserting non-RNA moiety into an RNA template and the method functions to pause a ribosome during translation. The molecule of Invention II operates as a single molecule comprising a protein and its encoding RNA and the molecule functions to maintain the covalent attachment between a protein and its encoding RNA. The molecule of Invention III operates as a single molecule comprising a protein and nucleic acid attached via a substance having a non-nucleic acid chemical structure and the molecule functions to provide a template for cell-free protein synthesis.

4. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

5. Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

6. Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
